the Cheyenne and Burlington Railroad. He dismounted in front of the Commercial Bank, and throwing his bridle rein over a hitching post entered the building. He walked directly to the window of Cashier C. C. Smith, who tells this story:

| BESPECTFULLY announce myself a candidate for re-election to the office of CITY AUDITOR and request the votes of my fellow-citizens, subject to the democratic primary. Thursday, April 25, 1889.

| April 25, 1889. | E. F. PRICE. | dismounted in front of the Commercial

C. C. Smith, who tells this story:
"The fellow was as polite as a drummer. He smiled at his six shooter as he pushed it through the window and levelled it at me. Allowing me an instant to regain my com posure, he inquired if I would be kind enough to hand him about all the cash in sight. There was over $700 in view. I counted him out $500 in gold and bills. This seemed satisfactory, and my visitor was profuse in his thanks. Then he looked about the place and said he would like an interest in the business. Seeing a Winches interest in the business. Seeing a Winchester rifle, which I kept near the vault for emergencies, he grew more earnest in manner, and demanded the weapon. I handed it out, butt first, as he ordered. He then backed to the door, and, leaving the rifle against the outside wall, placed his revolver in its hoetler, landed into his saddle by a leap from the ground, and putting spurs to his horse, was off at furious speed." There were six persons in the bank at the time, but the cowboy did his business so quietly and so expeditiously that he attracted no attention. Cashier Smith ran into the street as soon as he could, and seizing the Winchester began firing at the rapidly moving horseman. The fellow ducked in regular Indian style and cut loose with a cowboy yell at every crack of the rifle. Smith is a poor shot at best, and in his excitement Monday failed to hit even so large a target as the horse. A posse of twelve men are now in pursuit of the bandit.

At Minneapolis, Minn., yesterday, a bold and nearly successful attempt was made to rob the State bank. Two men went into the bank when only two employes were present. One covered the employes with a revolver while the other vaulted over the railing and thrust about $8,000 which was on the teller's table in a value. At this moment a depositor came in and forced the uncovering of the assistant cashier, who rushed to the safe to get his pistol. The robber threw the va-lise to his accomplice, who dashed into the president's room by mistake. He then jumped through a window and fied. There was a wild chase and finally the two robbers were captured and lodged in jail. The names of the men are given as Jas. Henry and Fred. Douglass.

A SNAKE IN HER STOMACH .- Mrs. Fran Kenny, of Portsmouth, N. H., claims to have been relieved of a snake 12% inches long. Dr. F. N. Frost has the reptile, and makes oath that it came from Mrs. Kenny's stomach. For the past two years and a half Mrs. Kenny has been a sufferer from some disorder of the stomach, and notwithstand-ing, that the patien had been under the treatment of some of the most eminent physicians of New England, no relief was af-for ed her. Mrs. Kenny insi-ted from the first that some living creature was in her stomach, and that her sufferings dated from August, 1886, when, while at a camp meet-ing she drank from a brook, and realized that she had swallowed some reptile. Her physicians scouted the idea, and treated her for cancer and other ordinary stomach trou-bles, without relieving the patient's suffer-WHOLESALE GROCERS.

TWENTY WIVES .- Some years ago a Newburyport, Mass., sailor named Carl Benjamin was wrocked on one of the largest of the Caroline Islands. He decided to make the island his home, as there was no work to do and plenty to eat. The na-tives, who are very good-natured, took kindly to him, and have made him their king. He is a somewhat scholarly man, and is diligently teaching the natives English and the rudiments of civilized life. He has twenty wives and fifty children.
